INTRODUCTION

2 For more than six years, Plaintiff Mei Ling, a formerly homeless 3 woman with a disability who uses a wheelchair and now lives in an 4 inaccessible apartment, has sought to rent an accessible, affordable apartment
5 in the Redevelopment Housing Program operated by Defendant Community 6 Redevelopment Agency of the City of Los Angeles (“CRA”) and the City of 7 Los Angeles (“City”), which is principally supported by federal and state 8 funds.

9 Defendants have moved for summary judgment or summary
10 adjudication on Ms. Ling's claim that the CRA and City's Redevelopment 11 Housing Program is not meaningfully accessible to her. The CRA and City's 12 bases for their motions for summary judgment or summary adjudication are 13 groundless.

14 First, the CRA argues that Ms. Ling does not have a claim against it 15 because it is a dissolved redevelopment agency. To the contrary, Ms. Ling 16 may properly continue her action against the CRA even though its rights and 17 obligations have been transferred to the successor agency known as CRA/LA.
18 Second, Defendants contend that Ms. Ling’s claims under § 504 against them 19 are barred because an apartment complex in the Redevelopment Housing 20 Program did not receive federal funds. However, there is no requirement that 21 each facility within the Redevelopment Housing Program receive federal 22 financial assistance for recipients such as Defendants to be liable for failure to 23 provide program access. Third, Defendants incorrectly contend that Ms. Ling 24 cannot privately enforce HUD’s regulations. But Ms. Ling does not seek to 25 privately enforce HUD regulations. Instead, Ms. Ling seeks to use 26 Defendants’ violations of HUD’s regulations as evidence of the lack of 27 meaningful program access. Fourth, Defendants mistakenly contend that Ms.
28 Ling’s claims are time barred. The Defendants’ failure to provide program

1 access, however, is a continuing violation. Fifth, the CRA wrongly argues 2 that it attempted to monitor its sub-recipients. As outlined below, federal law 3 provides that CRA must ensure that its sub-recipients comply with § 504;
4 mere attempts to monitor are insufficient. Sixth, the CRA mistakenly argues 5 that Ms. Ling has not established that she was denied a benefit solely because 6 of her disability. But through her reasonable accommodation requests, Ms.
7 Ling sought access to the same benefit provided to other persons without 8 disabilities and the CRA’s failure or refusal to grant her requests for 9 accommodation provides the link between her disability and the denial of 10 housing.

STATEMENT OF RELEVANT FACTS

12 Plaintiff Mei Ling lives in North Hollywood, in Los Angeles, 13 California. Decl. of Mei Ling in Supp. of Opp. To Mot. for Summ. J. (Ling 14 Decl.) ¶ 18. She uses a wheelchair. Id. ¶ 6. Ms. Ling requires a dwelling unit 15 that is both wheelchair-accessible and affordable on her limited income. Id. ¶¶ 16 8 & 10. Because of her mobility impairment, she requires assistance with 17 personal care. Id. ¶ 7.

18 Ms. Ling became homeless in about May 2006. Id. ¶ 11. Since that 19 time, she has sought to obtain affordable, wheelchair-accessible housing in the 20 Redevelopment Housing Program. Id. ¶¶ 16, 26 & 82. Her attempts to obtain 21 housing included applications, inquiries regarding her status on the waiting 22 list, and requests for reasonable accommodation made to the CRA and the 23 owners and managers of two properties financed by CRA: The Lofts and 24 NoHo 14. Id. ¶¶ 26-82.

For example, on September 14, 2007, Ms. Ling made a written request to the CRA's Don Spivak that The Lofts make a reasonable accommodation and make an exception to the manner in which it assigns persons to accessible, affordable units and assign persons with disabilities requiring accessible

1 features to the accessible, affordable units at The Lofts. Id. ¶ 33.

2 On August 7, 2008, Ms. Ling made a request that The Lofts make an 3 exception to the manner in which it assigns persons to accessible, affordable 4 units and assign persons with disabilities requiring accessible features to the 5 accessible, affordable units at The Lofts. Id. ¶ 46. The request was made to 6 Dalila Sotelo of CRA. Id.

7 Similarly, for instance, on February 18, 2012, Ms. Ling made an oral 8 request to Athena Tsiatos that NoHo 14 make an exception to the manner in 9 which it assigns persons to accessible, affordable units and assign persons with 10 disabilities requiring accessible features, including her, to the accessible, 11 affordable units at NoHo 14. Id. ¶ 83.

12 In response to her attempts to obtain housing in the Redevelopment 13 Housing Program, Ms. Ling was informed at various times that she would be 14 first on the waitlist for an affordable housing unit at either The Lofts or NoHo 15 14, she would be given priority status for an affordable housing unit, or that 16 various public officials were working on obtaining housing for her. Id. ¶¶ 27, 17 37, 41, 43, 50, 52, 53, 55, 58, 59 & 77.

18 For instance, in April 2008, Thomas Meredith, a manager of NoHo 14, 19 told Ms. Ling that he would offer her a place at top of the waitlist for a two-20 bedroom unit at NoHo 14. Id. ¶ 33.

21 On June 1, 2009, Ms. Ling received an email from Mr. Brady 22 confirming that she would be given priority status once NoHo14 began renting 23 its affordable housing units. Id. ¶ 59.

24 On behalf of the CRA, Edwin Gipson sent an e-mail to Natalie Lozon of 25 NoHo 14 on December 27, 2010, which instructed Ms. Lozon that the owner 26 and management of NoHo14 “are required to follow all fair housing and 27 accessible housing laws, but as long as you are in compliance with the various 28

1 laws, it is acceptable to CRA/LA if you want to prioritize people with 2 disabilities to your accessible units.” Id. ¶ 77.

3 From 2007 to the present, Ms. Ling has been either homeless or living 4 in housing that is inaccessible to her and has been desperate for affordable, 5 accessible housing. Id. ¶ 28. She made attempts to obtain housing in the 6 Redevelopment Housing Program through a number of officials at the CRA 7 and City of Los Angeles and many representatives of the owners and 8 managers at The Lofts and NoHo 14. Id. Throughout this period of time, Ms.
9 Ling’s circumstances changed and she made different reasonable 10 accommodation requests to different persons. Id. Because at various times 11 during this period she was told either that public officials were working on 12 obtaining housing for her, that she would be given priority status for an 13 affordable housing unit, or that she would be placed number one on the 14 waitlist for an affordable housing unit, Ms. Ling never believed that she had 15 been permanently denied housing at the CRA and City’s Redevelopment 16 Housing Program at The Lofts and NoHo 14 or that any future attempts to 17 obtain housing would be futile. Id. She therefore continued to make attempts, 18 up to the present day, to obtain housing in the Redevelopment Housing 19 Program at The Lofts and NoHo 14. Id.

20 I. MS. LING HAS A VIABLE CLAIM AGAINST THE CRA

21 Ms. Ling filed her action against the Community Redevelopment 22 Agency of the City of Los Angeles (“CRA”), among other defendants, before 23 redevelopment agencies in California were abolished by statute. CRA/LA, the 24 designated local authority and successor to the CRA, incorrectly contends that 25 Ms. Ling does not have a claim against the CRA because it is a dissolved 26 agency. Under Rule 25 of the Federal Rules of Civil Procedure, Ms. Ling’s 27 action may properly be continued against the CRA.

28 California Health & Safety Code § 34173(b) transferred all rights and

1 obligations of the former CRA to its successor organization, CRA/LA.
2 Section 34173(b) states that “all authority, rights, powers, duties, and 3 obligations previously vested with the former redevelopment agencies, under 4 the Community Redevelopment Law, are hereby vested in the successor 5 agencies.” Id.

6 Rule 25 of the Federal Rules of Civil Procedure specifically allows Ms.
7 Ling to continue her action against the CRA. Rule 25 states that “[i]f an 8 interest is transferred, the action may be continued by or against the original 9 party unless the court, on motion, orders the transferee to be substituted in the 10 action or joined with the original party.” Fed. R. Civ. P. 25(c).

11 As the Ninth Circuit has explained, Rule 25(c) “is designed to allow 12 the action to continue unabated when an interest in the lawsuit changes hand.” 13 In re Bernal, 207 F.3d 595, 598 (9th Cir. 2000) (quoting Collateral Control 14 Corp. v. Deal (In re Covington Grain Co., Inc.), 638 F.2d 1362, 1364 (5th Cir.
15 1981)). Rule 25(c) “does not require that anything be done after an interest 16 has been transferred. The action may be continued by or against the original 17 party, and the judgment will be binding on his successor in interest even if he 18 is not named.” In re Bernal, 207 F.3d at 598 (quoting 7C CHARLES ALAN 19 WRIGHT ET AL, FEDERAL PRACTICE & PROCEDURE § 1958 (2d ed. 1986)).

20 In this case, CRA’s rights and obligations were transferred to its 21 successor, CRA/LA, by operation of law. See Cal. Health & Safety Code §
22 34173(b); CRA Stmt. of Undisputed Facts No. 5. Under Rule 25, Ms. Ling 23 may properly continue her action against CRA and any judgment will be 24 binding against CRA/LA.

25 II. MS. LING’S CLAIMS AGAINST THE CRA AND CITY ARE 26 NOT BARRED BECAUSE NOHO 14 DID NOT RECEIVE FEDERAL FUNDING

27 Ms. Ling’s claims under § 504 of the Rehabilitation Act against the 28 CRA and City for failure to make the Redevelopment Housing Program

1 accessible are not barred because NoHo 14 did not receive federal funding.

2 All entities receiving federal financial assistance must comply with the 3 anti-discrimination provisions of § 504, which provides that “[n]o otherwise 4 qualified individual with a disability . . . shall, solely by reason of her or his 5 disability, be excluded from the participation in, be denied the benefits of, or 6 be subjected to discrimination under any program or activity receiving Federal 7 financial assistance . . .” 29 U.S.C. § 794. The Ninth Circuit has recognized 8 that “the focus of the prohibition in § 504 is ‘whether disabled persons were 9 denied ‘meaningful access.’’” Mark H. v. Lemahieu, 513 F.3d 922, 937 (9th 10 Cir. 2008) (quoting Crowder v. Kitagawa, 81 F.3d 1480,1484 (9th Cir. 1996).

11 As recipients of millions of dollars in HUD funds each year, the CRA 12 and City are required, by operation of law, to comply with the Rehabilitation 13 Act and HUD’s implementing regulations, because Congress has exercised its 14 authority under the Spending Clause to establish that obligation on recipients 15 of federal funds. See Lovell v. Chandler, 303 F.3d 1039, 1051 (9th Cir. 2002)
 16 (holding that the Rehabilitation Act represents a valid exercise of Congress’s 17 spending power, and that “Congress has a strong interest in ensuring that 18 federal funds are not used in a discriminatory manner and in holding states 19 responsible when they violate funding conditions.”); Koslow v.
 20 Commonwealth of Pennsylvania, 302 F.3d 161, 175-76 (3d Cir. 2002) 21 (“Through the Rehabilitation Act, Congress has expressed a clear interest in 22 eliminating disability-based discrimination in state departments or agencies.
 23 That interest, which is undeniably significant and clearly reflected in the 24 legislative history, flows with every dollar spent by a department or agency 25 receiving federal funds.”) (citation omitted).

26 In this case, Ms. Ling contends that the CRA and City’s Redevelopment 27 Housing Program at The Lofts and NoHo 14 is not meaningfully or readily 28 accessible to her. To establish a violation of § 504 of the Rehabilitation Act, a

1 plaintiff must show that (1) she is disabled within the meaning of the 2 Rehabilitation Act; (2) she is otherwise qualified for the benefit or service; (3) 3 she was denied the benefit or service solely by reason of her handicap; and (4) 4 the program providing the benefit or service receives federal financial 5 assistance. Lovell, 303 F.3d at 1052; Smith v. Barton, 914 F.2d 1330, 1338
 6 (9th Cir. 1990). “Program” is defined under § 504 as “all the operations of a 7 department, agency . . . or other instrumentality of a State or local 8 government.” 29 U.S.C. § 794(b)(1)(A).

9         HUD’s program accessibility regulation for existing housing provides 10 that “[a] recipient shall operate each existing housing program or activity 11 receiving Federal financial assistance so that the program or activity, when 12 viewed in its entirety, is readily accessible to and usable by individuals with 13 handicaps.” 24 C.F.R. § 8.24(a); see Pierce v. County of Orange, 526 F.3d 14 1190, 1215 (9th Cir. 2008) (interpreting Title II of the ADA). The program 15 accessibility requirements do not necessarily require that a housing program
 16 make all of its existing housing programs usable and accessible. 24 C.F.R. § 17 8.24(a)(1); see Pierce, 526 F.3d at 1215. Instead, a recipient may comply with 18 the program access requirements through such means as “reassignment of 19 services to accessible buildings, assignment of aides to beneficiaries, provision 20 of housing or related services at alternate accessible sites, alteration of existing 21 facilities and construction of new facilities, or any other methods that result in 22 making its programs or activities readily accessible to and usable by 23 individuals with handicaps.” 24 C.F.R. § 8.24(b); see Pierce, 526 F.3d at 24 1215.

25         To establish that the CRA and the City’s Redevelopment Housing 26 Program is not readily accessible, Ms. Ling’s evidence will include but is not 27 limited to: the Defendants’ failures to make reasonable accommodations, the 28 Defendants’ failures to make common areas and units The Lofts and NoHo 14

1 physically accessible, and the CRA and City's failure to monitor the owners 2 and managers' of The Lofts and NoHo 14's compliance with § 504.

3 The CRA and City contend that they cannot be liable under § 504 for 4 any acts or failures to act related to NoHo 14 because they never allocated any 5 federal financial assistance to NoHo 14. The CRA and the City fundamentally 6 misconstrue the requirements for a program access claim under § 504. There 7 is no requirement that each facility within the Redevelopment Housing 8 Program receive federal financial assistance for a recipient to be liable for 9 failure to provide program access. See Huezo v. L.A. Cmty. Coll., No. CV 04-10 9772 MMM (JWJx), 2007 WL 7289347 (C.D. Cal. Feb. 27, 2007) (granting 11 partial summary judgment to plaintiffs and noting that a community college 12 district, not the individual college in question, conceded that it received federal 13 financial assistance); Putnam v. Oakland Unified Sch. Dist., No. C-93-3772-14 CW, 1995 WL 873734 (N.D. Cal. June 9, 1995) (noting that the school 15 district, not the individual schools in question, did not contest that it received 16 federal financial assistance). The CRA and the City receive federal financial 17 assistance from HUD (CRA's Stmt. of Undisputed Fact No.1 & Ex. A), 18 therefore the CRA and the City must comply with the program access 19 requirements of § 504 in the operation of their Redevelopment Housing 20 Program. See 24 C.F.R. § 8.24; Pierce, 526 F.2d at 1215.

21
22 III. VIOLATIONS OF HUD'S REGULATIONS ARE RELEVANT 23 EVIDENCE IN DETERMINING WHETHER THE CITY AND CRA'S REDEVELOPMENT HOUSING PROGRAM IS ACCESSIBLE

24 Violations of HUD's regulations interpreting § 504 can be used as 25 evidence in construing the CRA and City's obligations under the 26 Rehabilitation Act and interpreting substantive violations of § 504. In their 27 motions for summary judgment, the CRA and City argue that HUD's 28 regulations cannot be privately enforced. Ms. Ling does not seek to privately

1 enforce HUD's regulations but instead seeks to use the CRA and City's 2 violations of the regulations as evidence that the CRA and City have violated
3 the § 504 statute itself by failing to ensure that their Redevelopment Housing 4 Program provides meaningful access to people with disabilities.

5       HUD's regulations prohibit the City, "directly or through contractual, 6 licensing, or other arrangements," from discriminating in violation of the 7 Rehabilitation Act and prohibit it from perpetuating the discrimination of 8 another by aiding or perpetuating discrimination by providing significant 9 assistance to another entity that in turn discriminates or otherwise limiting a 10 person with a disability's enjoyment of a right, privilege or opportunity 11 enjoyed by others. See 24 C.F.R. § 8.4(b)(1)(v); 24 C.F.R. § 8.4 (b)(4)(i) ("In 12 any program or activity receiving Federal financial assistance from the 13 Department, a recipient may not, directly or through contractual or other 14 arrangements, utilize criteria or methods of administration the purpose or 15 effect of which would: (i) Subject qualified individuals with handicaps to 16 discrimination solely on the basis of handicap").

17       HUD § 504 regulations also describe specific architectural and other 18 requirements that apply to particular housing projects such as The Lofts that 19 receive federal financial assistance that originated with the City and was given 20 to the CRA to carry out the CRA and City's housing programs. For example, 21 HUD defines one element of accessibility as requiring that five percent of the 22 total dwelling units in new multifamily housing projects receiving federal 23 financial assistance meet the requirements set forth in the Uniform Federal 24 Accessibility Standards ("UFAS") for accessibility for people with mobility
25 impairments, and that an additional two percent must be accessible per UFAS
26 requirements for people with hearing or vision impairments. 24 C.F.R. § 27 8.22(a) & (b).

28       Multifamily housing projects receiving federal financial assistance must 1 take steps to ensure that accessible dwelling units in those projects are 2 occupied by people who need the accessibility features of those units, 3 including offering available units first to people who need the accessibility 4 features and taking steps to ensure that advertising and other information 5 regarding the availability of accessible units reaches people with disabilities.

6 24 C.F.R. § 8.27.

7 Accessible units must also be distributed throughout housing projects 8 and sites to the maximum extent feasible and be available in a range of sizes 9 and amenities so that a person with a disability's choice of living arrangements 10 is comparable to that of others. 24 C.F.R. § 8.26.

11 Ms. Ling does not, as the CRA and City suggest, seek directly to 12 enforce the regulations found in §§ 8.22, 8.26 or 8.27. Instead, Ms. Ling seeks 13 to use violations of these regulations as evidence that the CRA and City's 14 Redevelopment Housing Program fails to provide meaningful access to people 15 with disabilities. See Third Am. Compl. ¶ 38 (noting that the regulations 16 regarding these specific requirements provide important guidance about what 17 steps may be necessary to ensure that people with physical disabilities have 18 meaningful access to a housing program).

19 District courts have consistently held that violations of regulations 20 implementing § 504 may be used as evidence to show that an entity has failed 21 to make its program accessible to people with disabilities, even when the 22 regulations themselves were not privately enforceable. Taylor v. The Hous.
23 Auth. of New Haven, 267 F.R.D. 36, 47 (D. Conn. 2010); Huezo, 2007 WL
24 7289347, at *8; Telesca v. Long Island Hous. P'ship, Inc., 443 F. Supp. 2d 25 397, 410 (E.D.N.Y. 2006); Cherry v. City Coll. of S.F., No. C04-4981 WHA, 26 2005 WL 2620560 (N.D. Cal. Oct. 14, 2005) (refusing to recognize a private 27 right of action under Title II of the ADA to enforce regulations requiring a 28 transition plan but noting that evidence of regulatory violations may be

1 relevant to proving plaintiffs' claims of discrimination).

2 For example, in Telesca, a person with a disability entered a lottery for 3 an affordable homeownership unit from an affordable housing developer that 4 received federal funds. 443 F. Supp. 2d at 399-400. The plaintiff was notified 5 that she was selected to purchase a unit but the unit was inaccessible. Id. She 6 requested various reasonable accommodations but the home was eventually 7 offered to another applicant. Id. at 400-01. The plaintiff brought suit against 8 the affordable housing developer, as well as the state and local agencies that 9 provided federal funding to the project, alleging that she was not provided 10 meaningful access to the affordable housing program. Id. at 399. Defendants 11 filed a motion to dismiss. The district court held that the program access 12 regulations set forth in 24 C.F.R. §§ 8.22 and 8.27 do not apply to 13 homeownership projects. Id. at 409. However, the district court recognized 14 that "any of the HUD regulations implementing the Rehabilitation Act may be 15 relevant to determining whether defendants are liable under Section 504, and 16 what remedies are available to address such violations." Id. at 410 (citing 17 Henrietta D. v. Bloomberg, 331 F.3d 261, 280 (2d Cir. 2003)).

18 Similarly, in Huezo, Judge Morrow found that the Los Angeles 19 community college district failed to comply with regulations under the 20 Rehabilitation Act and the ADA that required the defendant to evaluate its 21 programs, services and facilities and prepare a transition plan. Huezo, 2007
 22 WL 7289347, at *8. In granting plaintiff's motion for partial summary 23 adjudication, the court explained that while the defendant's violation of the 24 regulations "does not necessarily prove that defendant's services, programs, or 25 activities are not accessible to qualified disabled persons (citation omitted), it 26 is evidence tending to show that [plaintiff] was discriminated against with 27 regard to defendant's services, programs or activities." Id. (citing Cherry, 28 2005 WL 2620560, at *4).

1        In this case, Ms. Ling similarly does not seek to directly enforce the 2        HUD regulations setting forth architectural and other requirements at 24 3        C.F.R. §§ 8.22, 8.26 and 8.27. The CRA and City's violations of these 4        regulations, however, is evidence tending to show that the CRA and City's 5        Redevelopment Housing Program is not accessible to people with disabilities
6        and that Ms. Ling was discriminated against with regard to Defendant's 7        housing program.

8        Thus, the court need not address whether HUD's regulations regarding 9        architectural and other requirements are privately enforceable. Regardless of 10      whether the regulations are privately enforceable, violations of the regulations 11      are evidence tending to show that CRA and City's Redevelopment Housing 12      Program is not accessible to people with disabilities.

13 IV. MS. LING'S CLAIMS ARE NOT TIME BARRED

14      A. Ms. Ling's Claims that the CRA and City's Redevelopment 15      Housing Program Is Not Readily Accessible to Her Are A Continuing Violation

16        Ms. Ling's claim that the CRA and the City's Redevelopment Housing 17      Program is not accessible to her is not time barred. Both the CRA and the 18      City argue that the statute of limitations on Ms. Ling's claims has expired.
19      The City incorrectly contends that Ms. Ling's claims are time barred because 20      both The Lofts and NoHo 14 permanently denied her requests for 21      accommodation. The CRA wrongly contends that Ms. Ling's claims are 22      time-barred because the date of construction of The Lofts and NoHo 14 starts 23      the running of the limitations period.

24        The CRA and the City again misconstrue the nature of Ms. Ling's 25      claims against them. Ms. Ling has not asserted "design and construction" 26      claims; rather, she contends that CRA and the City's Redevelopment Housing 27      Program at The Lofts and NoHo 14 is not readily or meaningfully accessible 28      to her. 24 C.F.R. § 8.24; see Pierce, 526 F.3d 1190, 1215 (9th Cir. 2008)

1 (interpreting Title II of the ADA).

2       The CRA and the City’s failure to provide program access to Ms. Ling 3 to the Redevelopment Housing Program is a continuing violation. See Mosier 4 v. Kentucky, 675 F. Supp. 2d 693, 698 (E.D. Ky. 2009); Eames v. S. Univ. and 5 Agric. and Mech. Coll., No. 09-56-JJB, 2009 WL 3379070 at *3 (M.D. La.
6 Oct. 16, 2009); Schonfeld v. City of Carlsbad, 978 F. Supp. 1329, 1333 (S.D.
7 Cal. 1997) (noting that program access claims were continuing in nature). As 8 “long as Plaintiff is denied meaningful access to Defendants’ programs,” the 9 violation of § 504 continues. Mosier, 675 F. Supp. 2d at 698; Eames, 2009
10 WL 3379070 at *3. Governments continue to discriminate against people 11 with disabilities by providing programs that are not meaningfully accessible.
12 See Eames, 2009 WL 3379070 at *3. “To find otherwise would destroy the 13 requirement that governments provide persons with disabilities ‘meaningful 14 access’” to programs. Mosier, 675 F. Supp. 2d at 698 (citing Alexander v.
15 Choate, 469 U.S. 287, 301 (1985); Eames, 2009 WL 3379070 at *3.

16       The CRA argues that the accrual of the statute of limitations should be 17 governed by the date that The Lofts and NoHo 14 were constructed. In 18 Eames, the district court flatly rejected that argument. 2009 WL 3379070 at 19 *3. As the district court in Eames explained, the issue in a program access 20 case is not whether “Defendants’ construction or alteration created 21 inaccessible facilities, but rather whether the programs offered in those 22 facilities are accessible.” Id. “Because the facilities need not be accessible if 23 the programs themselves are accessible,” Ms. Ling’s claims did not accrue at 24 the time of construction. See id.

25       Ms. Ling’s claims that the CRA and City failed to provide program 26 access to their Redevelopment Housing Program are not time barred.

27

28

1           B. Ms. Ling Attempted to Obtain a Benefit from the 2           Redevelopment Housing Program Within the Statute of 3           Limitations Period

4           Even if Ms. Ling's program access claims were not a continuing 5           violation, which they are, Ms. Ling attempted to obtain a benefit in the 6           Redevelopment Housing Program through numerous requests for reasonable 7           accommodations within the statute of limitations period.

8           “The pivotal question in assessing the statute of limitations issue is 9           whether [Plaintiff] made a specific request for accommodation that was denied 10          during the statutory periods. . . .” Tobin v. Liberty Mut. Ins. Co., 553 F.3d 11          121, 133 (1st Cir. 2009). Each time Ms. Ling renewed her requests for 12          reasonable accommodation and that accommodation was denied, a discrete act 13          of discrimination occurred, and that started a fresh limitations period. See id.
14          at 131-133; Cherosky v. Henderson, 330 F.3d 1243, 1248 (9th Cir. 2003). The 15          Ninth Circuit has not established conclusively whether Rehabilitation Act 16          claims are subject to California’s two-year statute of limitations for personal 17          injury actions or a three-year statute of limitations for “liability created by 18          statute.” Peters v. Bd. of Trustees of Vista Unified Sch. Dist., 457 F. App’x 19          612, 614 (9th Cir. 2011). Assuming that the statute of limitations that applies 20          to a § 504 claim is the two year personal injury limitations period, Ms. Ling 21          made repeated requests for accommodation within the limitations period. See 22          Ling Decl. ¶¶ 60, 65-68, 76, 79-82.

23           C. There Are Genuine Issues of Material Fact Regarding 24           Whether Defendants Permanently Denied Ms. Ling’s 25           Requests for Reasonable Accommodation

26           Ms. Ling repeatedly made attempts to obtain a housing unit in the 27           Redevelopment Housing Program since June 2007. Id. ¶ 26. Her attempts to 28           obtain housing included applications, inquiries regarding her status on the waiting list, and requests for reasonable accommodation made to the CRA and the owners and managers of The Lofts and NoHo 14. Id.

1        During this time period, in response to her attempts to obtain housing in 2 the Redevelopment Housing Program, Ms. Ling was informed at various times 3 that she would be first on the waitlist for an affordable housing unit at either 4 The Lofts or NoHo 14, that she would be given priority status for an 5 affordable housing unit, or that various public officials were working on 6 obtaining housing for her. Id. ¶ 27.

7        The City, citing Knox v. Davis, 260 F.3d 1009, 1014 (9th Cir. 2001), 8 contends that Ms. Ling's reasonable accommodation requests were 9 permanently denied and that any new request for accommodation should be 10 barred. Knox, however, is distinguishable from this case. In Knox, the court 11 held that the § 1983 claim of a public defender was barred on statute of 12 limitations grounds because it accrued when she was informed by letter that 13 her legal mail and visitation privileges with respect to all prisons and all 14 prisoners were terminated, and that the repeated denials of her subsequent 15 requests did not revive that claim. Id. The City argues that Ms. Ling's 16 requests were denied at The Lofts on October 17, 2007 when a letter was sent 17 to Ms. Ling informing her that Pantages units were not included as part of the 18 affordable housing program at The Lofts and that only the CRA could give her 19 application priority status. See Exh. D to Decl. of Mark Byrne ("Byrne 20 Decl.") in Supp. of City's Mot. for Summ. J. Similarly, the City contends that 21 Ms. Ling's reasonable accommodation claims at NoHo 14 accrued when she 22 learned that another tenant had been rented a unit that Ms. Ling had been 23 promised on November 2, 2007.

24        Triable issues of fact exist about whether the October 17, 2007 letter 25 sent to Ms. Ling or the renting of an apartment at NoHo 14 that Ms. Ling 26 wanted to rent has a degree of permanence necessary to start the running of the 27 statute of limitations on Ms. Ling's reasonable accommodation claims. See 28 Lelaind v. City and Cnty. of S.F., 576 F. Supp. 2d 1079, 1096 (N.D. Cal. 2008)

1 (noting that plaintiff raised a triable issue of fact regarding whether the 2 conduct had acquired a degree of permanence); Nazir v. United Airlines, Inc., 3 178 Cal. App. 4th 243, 270 ( 2009) (same).

4 Ms. Ling requested that The Lofts and NoHo 14 change the manner in 5 which they assigned affordable housing units and assign affordable, accessible 6 units to people with disabilities who could benefit from accessibility features 7 as a reasonable accommodation. Ms. Ling also requested that The Lofts 8 assign her a Pantages unit, which was more accessible for her disabilities, in 9 place of the types of units offered under the affordable housing program at The 10 Lofts.

11 Neither the October 17, 2007 letter nor the renting of Unit 620 provided 12 notice to Ms. Ling that her requests for reasonable accommodation were 13 permanently denied. The October 17, 2007 letter noted that only the CRA 14 could grant Ms. Ling a priority at The Lofts and that the Pantages units were 15 not part of units included in the affordable housing program under the owner 16 participation agreement. See Ex. D to Byrne Decl. The letter left open the 17 possibility that the CRA could have a role in granting the accommodations 18 that Ms. Ling sought and thus did not permanently deny her requested 19 accommodations. Indeed, after the October 26, 2007 letter was sent by The 20 Lofts, CRA and City officials notified Ms. Ling that they were working on 21 trying to find her housing and that she would be given priority. Ling Decl. ¶¶ 22 43, 50, 52, 53, 58-59.

23 Similarly, the renting of one of the units at NoHo 14 in February 2009
 24 that was accessible to her (see Ex. 12 to Ling Decl. at 3, Ex. 17 to Ling Decl.)
 25 did not provide Ms. Ling with notice that her reasonable accommodation 26 requests were permanently denied. After February 2009 when unit 620 was 27 rented, City officials told Ms. Ling that they were working on obtaining a unit 28 for her and that her application would be given priority. Id. ¶¶ 58-59.

1           Furthermore, Ms. Ling made attempts to obtain housing in the 2   Redevelopment Housing Program through various officials at the CRA and 3   City of Los Angeles and multiple representatives of the owners and managers 4   at The Lofts and NoHo 14. Id. ¶ 28. Ms. Ling's circumstances changed and 5   she made reasonable accommodation requests to different persons. Id.
 6   Because at various times she was told that officials were working on obtaining 7   housing for her or that she would be given priority for a unit, Ms. Ling never 8   believed that she had been permanently denied housing in the CRA and City's 9   Redevelopment Housing Program at The Lofts and NoHo 14 or that any future 10   attempts to obtain housing would be futile. Id.

11           Viewed in the light most favorable to Ms. Ling, a reasonable juror could 12   conclude that Ms. Ling believed that her efforts to obtain a unit in the 13   Redevelopment Housing Program might be successful and that she was not on 14   notice that her attempts to obtain housing in the Redevelopment Housing 15   Program were permanently denied.

16           V. THE CRA HAD A DUTY TO ENSURE THAT ITS SUB-
 17   RECIPIENTS COMPLIED WITH § 504

18           The CRA had a responsibility to ensure that housing developments 19   within its Redevelopment Housing Program, such as The Lofts and NoHo 14, 20   complied with § 504. The CRA's breaches of that duty are evidence tending 21   to show that the CRA's housing program is not meaningfully accessible to 22   people with disabilities.

23           In its motion for summary judgment, the CRA argues that it attempted 24   to monitor The Lofts' compliance with the physical accessibility requirements 25   of § 504 by sending out questionnaires to The Lofts and NoHo 14 requesting 26   information about accessibility.<sup>1</sup> The CRA misinterprets its obligations under

27           

<sup>1</sup> Notably, the CRA does not submit evidence showing that either The Lofts or 28   NoHo 14 is physically accessible to people with disabilities under the

1   § 504. The CRA's responsibilities under § 504 are not limited to monitoring 2   alone. Instead, the CRA has a responsibility to ensure that its sub-recipients 3   comply with the requirements of § 504.

4           Federal courts have repeatedly interpreted the Rehabilitation Act to 5   impose a duty on a recipients of federal funds to ensure that its sub-recipients 6   comply with § 504. See Henrietta D., 331 F.3d at 284-287; Jose P. v.
 7   Ambach, 669 F.2d 865, 871 (2d Cir. 1982); Emma C. v. Eastin, 985 F. Supp.
 8   940, 948 (N.D. Cal. 1997).

9           For example, in Henrietta D., the Second Circuit held that a recipient 10 (the State of New York) had a duty under § 504 to supervise sub-recipients, 11 such as New York City, in the delivery of federally-funded social services.
 12 The court reasoned that the Spending Clause imposed supervisory liability 13 upon recipients of federal funds under § 504. It explained that Spending 14 Clause legislation such as § 504 is interpreted under contract law principles 15 and that the common law of contracts strongly suggests that the primary 16 recipient of federal funds "is liable to ensure that localities comply with the 17 Rehabilitation Act in their delivery of federally-funded [] services." Id. at 286.
 18 The court held that under contract principles, "once a party has made a 19 promise, it is responsible to the obligee to ensure that performance will be 20 satisfactory, even if the promising party obtains some third party to carry out 21 its promise." Id. (emphasis supplied). The court found that in accepting 22 federal funds, the state as the primary recipient of federal social service funds 23 "promised that its programs will comply with the mandate of the 24 Rehabilitation Act." Id. (citing 29 U.S.C. § 794 and United States Dep't of 25 Transp. v. Paralyzed Veterans of Am., 477 U.S. 597, 605 (1986)). The Second

 The Lofts does not meet UFAS. See Ex. A & B to Pl. Req. for Jud. Not.

1 Circuit concluded that the state was “liable to guarantee that those it delegates 2 to carry out its programs satisfy the terms of its promised performance 3 including compliance with the Rehabilitation Act.” Henrietta D., 331 F.3d at 4 286.

5 The Second Circuit also held that the regulations implementing the 6 Rehabilitation Act strongly supported the view that a recipient may be held 7 responsible for the failure of its sub-recipients to comply with § 504. Id.
 8 Interpreting a regulation virtually identical in language to HUD’s § 504 9 regulation at 24 C.F.R. § 8.3, the court found that “[t]he regulations define a 10 covered ‘recipient’ to include not only the State, but also any of its 11 ‘successor[s], assignee[s], or transferee[s].’” Id. (quoting 28 C.F.R. § 41.3(d)).
 12 The court noted that the Department of Justice, in explaining a parallel ADA 13 regulation stated, “‘All governmental activities of public entities are covered, 14 even if they are carried out by contractors. For example, a State is obligated 15 by title II to ensure that the services, programs, and activities of a State park
 16 inn operated under contract by a private entity are in compliance with title II’s 17 requirements.’” Henrietta D., 331 F.3d at 286 (quoting 28 C.F.R. Pt. 35, App.
 18 A. (2002) at 517) (emphasis supplied).

19 CRA’s obligation under § 504 is not limited to attempting to monitor 20 The Lofts and NoHo 14 for compliance with § 504. The CRA had an 21 obligation to ensure that its sub-recipients comply with the substantive 22 requirements of § 504.

23

24 VI. MS. LING ESTABLISHES THAT SHE WAS DENIED A BENEFIT SOLELY BECAUSE OF HER DISABILITY

25 Ms. Ling meets each of the elements of her prima facie case for a 26 violation of the reasonable accommodation provision of § 504. In its motion 27 for summary judgment, the CRA wrongfully argues that Ms. Ling has not 28 established that she was denied a benefit solely because of her disability.

1           A. The CRA's Repeated Failure to Make Reasonable
2           Accommodations Shows that the CRA Denied Ms. Ling 3           Housing Solely Because of Her Disabilities

4           The CRA argues that Ms. Ling has not shown a triable issue of fact 5           regarding whether it denied her a benefit solely because of her disability.<sup>2</sup> The 6           requirement that a plaintiff must show that she was denied a benefit solely 7           because of disability is not a requirement that Ms. Ling establish 8           discriminatory intent. See American Council for the Blind v. Paulson, 525 9           F.3d 1256, 1260 (D.C. Cir. 2008) (quoting Alexander, 469 U.S. at 295 (“The 10          Supreme Court has instructed that section 504 does not require proof of 11          discriminatory intent because ‘[d]iscrimination against the handicapped was 12          perceived by Congress to be most often the product, not of invidious animus, 13          but rather thoughtlessness and indifference – of benign neglect.’”) Instead, a 14          plaintiff may establish that disability was the sole factor where a defendant
15          fails or refuses to make a reasonable accommodation. Humphrey v. Mem'l 16          Hosp. Ass'n, 239 F.3d 1128, 1140 (9th Cir. 2001); McPherson v. Mich. High 17          Sch. Athletic Ass'n, Inc., 119 F.3d 453, 460 (6th Cir. 1997); *Borkowski v.
18          Valley Cent. Sch. Dist.*, 63 F.3d 131, 143 (2d Cir. 1995).

19           The record in this case contains substantial evidence that Ms. Ling 20          repeatedly made reasonable accommodation requests to the CRA and that the 21          CRA failed or refused to grant her requests for reasonable accommodation.
22          Ling Decl. ¶¶ 33, 42, 46, 51, 56 & 76.

23           Based on the summary judgment record in this case, a reasonable juror 24          could conclude that the CRA denied Ms. Ling housing because of her

---

25          <sup>2</sup> In its motion for summary judgment, the CRA sets forth the allegations 26          contained in Ms. Ling's complaint against the CRA for failing to make 27          reasonable accommodations. Ms. Ling specifically stated in the complaint 28          that she was providing examples of her requests for reasonable accommodation directed at the CRA. As set forth more fully in Ms. Ling's declaration in support of her opposition, Ms. Ling made numerous requests for reasonable accommodation to the CRA with regard to both units at The Lofts and NoHo 14.

1     disability based on Ms. Ling's repeated requests for accommodation directed 2     to the CRA. See Humphrey, 239 F.3d at 1140.

3                 B. Through Her Requests for Reasonable Accommodations, Ms.
4                 Ling Sought A Benefit Ordinarily Provided Through the 5                 CRA's Redevelopment Housing Program

6     Next, the CRA, citing American Council for the Blind, 525 F.3d 1256, 7     contends that the benefit that Ms. Ling sought through her requests for 8     accommodation was not a benefit ordinarily provided by the CRA in its 9     Redevelopment Housing Program. The reasoning of the D.C. Circuit in 10    American Council for the Blind, however, makes clear that Ms. Ling did not 11    seek a new or different benefit than the benefit provided to other people 12    without disabilities in the Redevelopment Housing Program.

13                 In American Council for the Blind, the plaintiffs alleged that the 14    Treasury Department denied meaningful access to people with disabilities 15    with respect to its program for the production and design of currency by 16    designing and issuing paper money that is not readily distinguishable by 17    people with visual impairments. In affirming partial summary judgment 18    entered in favor of the plaintiffs, the D.C. Circuit held that the visually 19    distinguishable paper money sought by the plaintiffs was not a new or 20    different benefit. 525 F.3d at 1269. In reaching that conclusion, the D.C.
21    Circuit explained that:

22                 Where the plaintiffs identify an obstacle that impedes their access 23    to a government program or benefit, they likely have established 24    that they lack meaningful access to the program or benefit. By 25    contrast, where the plaintiff seeks to expand the substantive scope 26    of a program or benefit, they likely seek a fundamental alteration 27    to an existing program or benefit and have not been denied 28    meaningful access.

29     Id. at 1267.

30                 The D.C. Circuit noted that people with physical disabilities lack 31    meaningful access when buildings and mass transport do not provide 32    wheelchair access. Id. at 1267-68 (citations omitted). Similarly, deaf

1 individuals lack meaningful access to government activities or programs 2 without the provision of interpretative services. Id. The court held, however, 3 that “[S]ection 504 ‘does not mandate the provision of new benefits.’” Id. at 4 1268 (quoting Rodriguez v. City of New York, 197 F.3d 611, 619 (2d Cir.
 5 1999)).

6 In concluding that the benefit sought – readily distinguishable paper 7 money – was not a new or different benefit, the court held that the plaintiffs 8 “seek[] only to remove an obstacle that the visually impaired confront in using 9 paper currency, and not . . . to obtain a substantively different benefit than is 10 already provided by the U.S. currency system.” Id. at 1268.

11 In this case, the benefit provided by the CRA in the Redevelopment 12 Housing Program is affordable housing. Ms. Ling’s reasonable 13 accommodation requests sought only to remove obstacles that people with 14 physical disabilities confront in seeking to obtain housing. Ms. Ling needed 15 housing physically accessible to her to be able to be able to live in a unit in the 16 Redevelopment Housing Program. The accommodations sought – changing 17 the method of assigning applicants to the affordable housing units and 18 assigning accessible units to people with physical disabilities and the inclusion 19 of the more accessible Pantages unit in the Redevelopment Housing Program 20 – would have provided Ms. Ling an equal opportunity to live at The Lofts and 21 NoHo 14. People without physical disabilities do not need an accessible unit 22 to live at The Lofts or NoHo 14. However, Ms. Ling and other people with 23 physical disabilities cannot live in the Redevelopment Housing Program 24 unless their units are physically accessible. Ms. Ling did not seek a new or 25 different benefit not available to people without disabilities through the 26 Redevelopment Housing Program.

27 Ms. Ling identified an obstacle – the lack of physically accessible 28 housing – that impedes her access to housing in the CRA’s Redevelopment

1 Housing Program and sought accommodations that would remove that 2 obstacle. Ms. Ling has therefore likely established that she lacks meaningful 3 access to the program or benefit. See American Council for the Blind, 525 4 F.3d at 1260.

6 VII. THE HUD COMPLIANCE REPORT IS RELEVANT TO MS.
LING'S CLAIMS

7 Finally, the CRA appears to assert a relevancy objection to Ms. Ling's 8 use of the HUD's Letter of Non-Compliance issued to the City and the CRA.
9 The Letter of Non-Compliance is plainly relevant to Ms. Ling's claims. Ms.
10 Ling claims that the CRA and City's Redevelopment Housing Program is not 11 meaningfully accessible to people with physical disabilities. To establish her 12 claim that the Redevelopment Housing Program is not accessible, Ms. Ling's 13 evidence will include but is not limited to: the Defendants' failures to make 14 reasonable accommodations, the Defendants' failures to make common areas 15 and units at The Lofts and NoHo 14 physically accessible, and the CRA and 16 City's failures to monitor the owners and managers' of The Lofts and NoHo 17 14's compliance with § 504.

18 HUD issued findings on each of these issues. By letter of January 11, 19 2012, the HUD Office of Fair Housing and Equal Opportunity notified the 20 City and the CRA of the results of that compliance review, which found that 21 "the City and the CRA are not monitoring the policies and procedures of 22 federally-funded recipients in several key areas, and that the policies in place 23 are not implemented in a manner that ensures that these policies and practices 24 do not discriminate against qualified individuals with disabilities because of 25 their disability. . . . there is no monitoring of Section 504 compliance, and . . .
26 an overall lack of knowledge as to the duties and responsibilities with respect 27 to Section 504." HUD Letter of Findings of Noncompliance, January 11, 28 2012, attached as Ex. A to Pl. Req. for Judicial Notice, at 7.

1        HUD also “found that a large percentage of residents without 2 disabilities currently occupy the designated accessible units in several HUD-3 funded developments,” and that, with no oversight from the CRA, many 4 developments had offered accessible dwelling units to the general population 5 on a lottery or waitlist basis without regard to disability or need for 6 accessibility features. Id. at 8. HUD concluded that accessible housing units 7 were not distributed throughout the projects and sites in a manner to provide 8 people with disabilities with a choice of living arrangements in certain 9 developments. Id. at 6. Specifically, HUD found that accessible units were 10 not distributed among the affordable units at The Lofts and that The Lofts 11 conducted a single lottery that did not take into account individuals with 12 disabilities. Id. at 6, 8.

13        In addition, HUD determined that “CRA has failed to ensure that HUD-14 funded developments implement comprehensive reasonable accommodation 15 policies for applicants, residents and members of the public.” Id. at 9.

16        HUD’s Letter of Findings tends to make it more probable that the CRA 17 and the City failed to monitor its sub-recipients, failed to ensure that 18 accessible units were assigned to people with physical disabilities, and failed 19 to ensure that housing developments developed reasonable accommodation 20 policies. See Fed. R. Evid. 401. HUD’s Letters of Findings are relevant to 21 Ms. Ling’s claims.
